

Highlights for: (No) Privacy Please!: What Determines Chinese Attitudes Toward Online Government Monitoring

-
- Demographic factors do not seem to be related to the acceptance of government technological monitoring in China
 - Government trust positively predicts acceptance of government monitoring in China
 - The direct pathway of Covid-19 substantially increased support for government monitoring
 - The indirect pathway of Covid-19 lowering support for government trust then lead to a small decrease in acceptance of government monitoring
 - None of the relevant variables for public monitoring predict acceptance of private monitoring, suggesting they have different determinants

*Corresponding author